

A photograph of Neil Gershenfeld, a man with white hair and a beard, wearing a dark jacket, standing on a large blue block. He is gesturing with his hands as if speaking. The background is a dark, industrial-looking space with various blue and white blocks and structures. Some blocks have white icons like a wrench, a gear, and a star. There are people sitting on the floor and on a raised platform in the background. The overall lighting is dim, with some blue and white highlights.

"Hem tingut una revolució digital, però no necessitem continuar tenint-la."

Neil Gershenfeld, Director del MIT Center for Bits and Atoms i creador dels Fab Labs